Jan 27

To John Worthington, at Springfield.

[Dedham, Mass.] Informs him of the appointment which he has received as one of the Commissioners to go to Tennessee to settle the disputes with the Indians. Went to see Mr. Cabot about the matter, who advised him to accept it even at the loss of his private interests, which seem to wear so heavily upon his present state of health. Has not heard from Mr. Hooker. Mr. Appleton sends word to Worthington that he may obtain the interest due him on his stocks if he will forward a power to receive it to some friend. Outlines the proper form for such a power. Sends a message from Mrs. Ames to "Sophy" and comments on his son Nathaniel.

.Anti-Slavery Office, New York. The writer doesn't think the addressee should take the defection of James Trask Woodbury and Charles Fitch so seriously. Doesn't think that Garrison and Amos A. Phelps should have put so much effort into attacking the Clerical Appeal. "It was the production of weak men acting in the character of cat's-paws." Thinks the Liberator partly to blame for "the weak brethren." Intends to attack the clergy as long as any of them defend slavery. Thought there were personal motives mixed into the strife over the Appeal. Didn't think Garrison could have been injured. "To be plain, if Garrison is injured from any quarter, I fear it will be from his best frien[illegible]d himself." Garrison didn't have to answer James Trask [illegible]bury's letter. Disapproves of Garrison's letter.

.Anti-Slavery Office, New York. Thinks it would be better to support schools which admit negro students than to undertake to build the new Manual Labor School. Beriah Green has been trying "to make the Oneida Institute the focus of light to the minds of 'colored Americans'." E. W. favors using A-S funds for scholarships for colored students at the Oneida Institute. Regrets that C. Stuart did not pay the English donation to the N.E. Anti-Slavery Society. The American Anti-Slavery Society voted to buy 500 copies of Mrs. L. M. Child's Appeal. The colonizationists have tried to silence James Temple, who has just come from Botany Bay.

‹Anti-Slavery Office, New York› "I have been distressed about the Liberator ever since I was in Boston." Deplores the expenditure of money on "a thousand brainless, soulless editors whose only fixed principle is to gravitate with the mass around them, while an honest man is left to starve ..." Approves G. Thompson's plan to get individuals "to take large numbers of copies" of the Liberator. Suggests that W.L.G. "go into all the country" and lecture, selling Liberators at the same time. Recommends treating delinquent subscribers "more cavalierly ... You do not dun enough."

To William Lloyd Garrison

Card 1

[New York] The quarterly magazine to be published by the American Anti-Slavery Society "will require a very vigorous effort" to get it going. Can see faults in his friends, which accounts for the criticism in a previous letter. Begs W.L.G. "to let other subjects alone till slavery is finished". Points out that the Declaration of Sentiments conflicts with W.L.G.'s idea that human government has no rightful authority, since the Declaration says that the freed slave should be put under the "protection of law." E. W. fears that W.L.G. will be sucked into "a vortex of Spiritual Quixotism" by his Peace doctrines. Disagrees with W.L.G.'s doctrine of "perfect holiness." Says [illegible] Gospel truth does not wholly free a man from sin. Call[illegible].L.G.'s theological position

«Office of the American Anti-Slavery Society, New York» Refers to an outrage committed by the "Reform" Convention in Pennsylvania. E. W. and J. G. Whittier suggest that the Pa. Abolitionists "submit to the electors a powerful & manly appeal against the new constitution ..." The colored people have been advised by their white friends not to oppose the new constitution, but E. W. feels that they should put forth their greatest effort against it. Suggest that W.L.G. ought to stir them up with one of his "'trumpet-calls' in the Liberator."

To John A. Collins

«New York» Gerrit Smith informed the writer that Elizur Wright was going to leave the Abolitionists,-"he could not live"- and that the Young Men's Society of New York City had engaged to support the Emancipator. The Executive Committee has voted to dissolve the American Anti-Slavery Society at its next meeting. The proposition was made by way of an inquiry from John G. Whittier in the Pennsylvania Freeman. The object is to take the management of the Anti-Slavery cause out of the hands of the people, especially to exclude women, and to have a new organization "more purely political." The "Political Anti-Human Rights abolitionists" rely largely on the young men of New York [illegible]e abolition lies mainly in Whiggism or Locofocoism." To William Lloyd Garrison

«Philadelphia» Finds that W. Goodell is "perfectly New-Organized. ... He is determined, like E. Wright, Leavitt & Co. to lay all the opposition to the political party scheme to Non-Resistance." J. G. Whittier is trying to discredit the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Thomas Earle will only accept the nomination for Vice-President from a democratic party which favors universal suffrage. H. C. W. expects much excitement at both the New York and Phila. Anti-Slavery annual meetings. The sale of the Emancipator was arranged so that J. Leavitt would get it.

[Philadelphia] A letter from Gerrit Smith "gives an account of his nomination for Governor & states the arguments used by Goodell, Green and others to remove his scruples ..." H. C. W. criticises G. S. for his going into politics, when he had conscientious scruples against doing so. T. Earle claimed that voting against pro-Slavery candidates was "true Anti-Slavery action." Refers to a letter of Joshua Durgan in the Pennsylvania Freeman.

To William Lloyd Garrison

[Philadelphia] Is much disturbed by the effect politics is having on the Abolitionists. Quotes from a letter of William O. Duvall, which describes the actions of Gerrit Smith and Alvan Stewart when the former was nominated for Governor of New York. Beriah Green and W. Goodell finally persuaded G. S. to accept the nomination. H. C. W. condemns G. S.'s lack of conscientious scruples. Thinks G. S.'s poor health may be a factor in his inconsistent conduct. "C. C. Burleigh is doing battle nobly for the right & the true, but the noble man is wearing out." H. C. W. is having an argument with the First Church in Newbury. W. Goodell has asked for H. C. W.'s opinion of "abo[illegible]ing slavery by legislative action." H. C. W. praise[illegible]G.'s refusal to take his seat in the World's Anti-Slavery Convention.

[Boston] "My very soul is burning within me." The writer condemns the ferocious mobbing of a procession of colored people in Philadelphia on August 1. The writer inquires about the conduct of the city authorities, the part taken by the Irish in the attack, the attitude of the clergy, etc. Wants a detailed answer. The writer could make good use of such material in England.

[Dublin] The writer is still at Dublin and will be there until he publishes "a volume respecting my residence at Graefenberg," which will deal with the water-cure and Non-Resistance. The writer will go to Glasgow to attend a meeting of the Emancipation Society. "George Thompson is laid by from speaking or writing. I wish he was in America." Interest is now focused on Father Theobald Mathew and his debt. "All unite to help him. Even distillers & brewers!"

«Glasgow» Two boxes, both worth 150 guineas, have this moment been sent off for Boston. "This house was thronged" when the contents were exhibited. It would have been better if they had not been so hurried by the Boston folks, for "the exhibition of these beautiful rich things would have done more to have brought the Boston Anti-Slavery Fair into repute in Scotland than a hundred lectures." Asks the addressee to tell F. Douglass that the writer cannot wait for him. Will leave Glasgow next week, to be in the North and Edinburgh for some weeks. Last sabbath the writer spoke three times on the subject of an inclosed Bill - "a perfect crowd in evening."

.Boston.. Quotes a resolution adopted at a meeting of some friends of human rights held in Boston on May 26-27, 1841 that a committee of twelve be appointed to call a world's convention "to consider the subject of Human Rights in all its bearings." Names the twelve committee members chosen, including the addressee. Sets forth the aims of the convention. Submits seven questions to which answers are solicited.

.Philadelphia., The letter is concerned with the "difficulties" in Massachusetts. The general impression in this region (Philadelphia) is that the conflict has grown out of "personal animosities" and people fail to see "that the question at issue is whether the original principles shall be sacrificed to political or religious sectarianism." Many, even Friends, fear that the participation of women at the meetings and the formation of the Non-Resistance Society will ruin the anti-slavery cause. The writer has told John Greenleaf Whittier that he misrepresented the state of things in Massachusetts. The writer is assured that the delegates from the New York Committee attended the quar[illegible] meeting with the intention of forming another anti-sla[illegible] society in Massachusetts.

‹Dublin, Ireland› Ann Allen asks the writer about the addressee and the chances of Joshua Leavitt's return to Garrisonian doctrines. "In Scotland the lines are drawn." Praises Elizabeth Pease. J. J. Gurney is vindictively trying to hurt the Anti-Slavery cause. His letters to Amelia Opie "are most false and hypocritical." Discourses on Irish affairs. Says that Joseph Sturge has gone to see D. O'Connell. Wishes that G. Thompson had gone to Boston instead of Bombay. Inquires about Abby Kelley. Compares the people of Old and New England.

To Miss Weston «Anne Warren Weston»

«Worcester, (Mass.)» The writer wonders at the "persistency of the Anti-Slavery workers." Saw Mr. (Samuel) May this morning, and they decided that their call should be published and that the addressee was the one to write it, as well as the advertisements. The best time for the Fair is thought to be the week of the Woman's Rights Convention in October. Hopes to have someone of the addressee's family present as a court of appeal "in case of «a» difference in judgment."
A.L.S. 4 p. 5 1/8 x 3 3/8 in.

Accompanied by envelope ad[illegible]sed to "Miss Anne Warren Weston, Weymouth, Mass." 2 3/[illegible] 3/4 in.

The writer thinks that the addressee should request, on writing to America, "a somewhat distinct ... account of the objects of the Boston Society, or of the measures on which its means are expended." Printed reports with audited accounts "might be very serviceable." Hints have been whispered that books on "polemical theology" are admitted by the Boston ladies to their Anti-Slavery Bazaar. It seems best to the writer to have the means of giving such rumors "a flat & fearless denial."

To Kate Field

«The New York Tribune, Editorial Department» The writer wants a news item about the "Sorosis" Society. Wishes Miss Field had sent him Alice Cary's speech instead of giving it to the N.Y. World. Says that newspaper men mind very much having news given to a rival paper. Wants Miss Field to act as Tribune correspondent in regard to the "Sorosis" Society. Says he will write an editorial about the Society.

To Kate Field

«The New York Tribune, Editorial Department,(N.Y.)» The writer discusses the publication of Miss Field's article on Fields, Osgood & Co. Says he hesitates to publish it, because if he does, every other publisher in the country will want the Tribune to run an article about them, too. Doubts if he will ever come to Boston. Says he doesn't care for the poem by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, nor the address of the President, nor the address of John Weiss on "Woman."
